What is counselling?

Counselling is a type of talking therapy which aims to help you understand your thoughts and feelings. It offers a non-judgemental space where you will be listened to.

The counsellor will try to see things from your point of view, while providing support to help you find your own answers.

Getting the chance to talk through your worries and problems with somebody can help you see things in a different light and help you find ways to help yourself.

Springboard sessions for children

Our hourly group sessions for children are free and run weekly for nine weeks. Groups run in term time at lunchtimes or after school, and also in school holidays. Sessions take place at local schools, children's organisations and at Andover Mind. At our Springboard sessions for children we aim to:

- promote the ability to cope and manage feelings through play, craft, and discussion
- explore empathy and feelings and how to express emotions with positive behaviours
- teach skills to reach goals and problem solve, and learn about the value of feedback and reflection
- increase children's awareness of self-regulation and de-escalation, and how to self-care for their mental health support early identification of emerging issues before secondary school.

Who can attend children sessions?

Our groups are open to children aged 9-11. Children can be referred to a group via their parent, school (Family Support or SENCo), children's organisation leader, doctor, CAMHS, school nurse, Early Help Hub or Social Worker.
